The MAST committee, chaired by Admiral (ret.) Tim Sloth Jorgensen, Former Chief of Defense, Denmark, will organise the event in close concert with arrangements for the "Northern Coasts" military training operations.

MAST Northern Coasts 2019's organisers will coordinate closely with the navies and ships taking part to enhance the MAST experience during the week, meaning that some of the hosted ship/systems tours will be "themed" to MAST-specific conference streams e.g. MCM, ASW, Missile defence, etc and becoming an integral part of the MAST conference and exhibition programme ...More to follow

Over three days MAST participants will hear keynote and plenary addresses from top level international military and government officials and attend technical presentations across a broad range of topics key to global naval/air operations and technologies.

The adjacent exhibition and static displays will showcase state-of-the-art naval/air platforms and systems, presented as solutions for tomorrow's operational challenges.

Hosted VIPs are expected from over twenty nations and there will be numerous opportunities – especially for sponsoring organisations – to engage with these highly influential individuals within the confines of the event areas and at the numerous organiser-arranged social functions.

All registered MAST delegates will also be able to attend the non-classified level, Northern Coasts pre-sail briefing.

During the week of MAST, Copenhagen's main harbour (10 min.s direct transport from MAST) is expected to receive over 40 warships and some 4,000 sailors.
